PROGRAM MANAGER II

DEFINITION OF CLASS:

This is either 1) professional work directing operational program(s) and/or managing and monitoring contracts of major scope, expenditure and effect; or, 2) professional staff work involving the analysis of nonstandard or unclear information, identifying various approaches and alternatives, and developing recommendations/drafting decisions which affect a wide range of activities for the consideration of or issuance by a higher level official or manager directing a line program or function. The majority of contacts are with employees in the same or other departments and agencies of the County Government, State and Federal agencies, non-profit and private sector organizations. The purposes of the contacts, which generally are of a cooperative nature with both parties working toward mutual goals, are for planning and coordinating management of programs or resolving program operating or staff problems. While the program work requires frequent meeting with the public, limited one-to-one assistance is provided directly to the public.

An employee in this class utilizes knowledge of a wide range of program management and subject matter program principles, techniques, functions, regulations and procedures in planning, organizing, directing and evaluating one or more programs and/or oversight of contractor activities. Assignments may also require knowledge of and skill in using computer and automated office technology. The employee independently plans and carries out all aspects of program development, implementation and evaluation advising higher level management of program status and achievements as well as potentially controversial matters or far reaching implications of decisions rendered. Completed work is reviewed in terms of the program effectiveness in meeting stated goals and objectives. Guidelines are generally available, but are provided in general terms requiring the employee to interpret administrative policies and precedents in developing guidelines that specifically cover the substantive technical or operational aspects of the program. The employee devises new approaches, methods or procedures for use by subordinate employees carrying out program activities. Work involves a variety of substantive issues and unique, complex problems requiring the analysis of unusual circumstances or interpretation of incomplete or contradictory data and the identification of various alternative solutions or approaches. Decisions include determining program needs, establishing priorities and allocating resources, maintaining budget targets while achieving program goals and evaluating overall program effectiveness. Work output affects a wide range of County Government services or activities including entitlement to Federal, State, or intergovernmental funds and implementation of Federal and State regulations. The work is primarily sedentary, performed in an office setting and presents no significant hazards.

Most employees in this class exercise supervisory responsibilities over assigned employees; interview and select applicants for vacant positions; assign work to staff; ensure prompt delivery of assistance and services and balanced distribution of workload; furnish instructions and ensure that completed work complies with policies, practices and procedures; conduct employee performance appraisals; counsel employees; approve leave; initiate disciplinary action; and resolve informal complaints and grievances.

(NOTE: The occupational field of program management involves directing or carrying out assignments for one or more programs; or, providing staff support to a higher level official or manager directing a line program or function. Responsibility for contract administration is frequently included. The programs generally relate directly to a department's/agency's mission of providing services to County residents. This field of work is distinguished from management-support functions such as personnel, budgeting or other administrative type tasks which are designed to facilitate the activities of other employees providing direct services. The work of this class consists of three distinct but interrelated functions: 1) determining what to do and deciding how and when to do it; 2) carrying out or overseeing the accomplishment of the work, and the development of new methods or criteria to achieve established objectives; and 3) evaluating the effectiveness of the activities carried out. Depending on the nature and level of the individual position, one or more of these functions may be assigned.)
